Excerpt: His Highness the Aga Khan on the Enabling Environment

by NANOWISDOMS ARCHIVE

[Enabling Environments have] been a central theme of my Imamat; (2) that many developing countries of Africa and Asia could one day become countries of opportunity ... is precisely the objective that I have been pursuing during the past 50 years. (3) The [Enabling Environment] concept [grew] out of my impatience with overly simple myths about how development really works. The term “Enabling Environment” reminds us that the full context of interacting forces must be brought together if sustainable development is to be achieved. The term also recognises that even the right environment is still only an enabling condition — not a sufficient one.... A sound enabling environment must create a favourable framework in which people’s energy and creativity can be motivated, mobilised and rewarded, (1) [where] individuals can make the best possible use of their own personal gifts. (2) In the end, human progress must grow out of human inspiration and endeavour. (1)
